Notwithstanding that this was an unanimous award, a protest was entered, and the Board of Managers took plenty of time to have all arguments carefully considered, and to hear all the facts, and have finally decided that the report of the judges must be sustained, and have paid the awards in full.

Education in Agriculture.

is already being made up. It is then a fit-ting time to consider its work, whether it is fully and faithfully filling the mission for which it was established, and for which the people of the State have given largely of means to equip for its intended service. Dr. Martin Wilekens, professor in the agricultural college at Vienna, is traveling in this country for the purpose of making he has never ke observations, and gathering materials on fattened and all subjects connected with agriculture, erally of milicattle raising, dairy products, food culture grasses grown ural colleges, in behalf of the and cured into Austrian government. Certainly, this is a matter claiming most candid consideration, if the condition of these institutions is as represented, and it cannot be disputed but he is correct in his observations. Truly his statement in regard to pupils in agriculture will apply in full force to our own State College. With a hundred and twenty-five students which a hundred and twenty-five students in attendance, there is found from year to year from none up to three or four taking the course in agriculture. It is claimed that our College is flourishing. Would the distinguished professor, searching for its agricultural features, find the department and its work filling a prominent place and giving character and distinction to the institution? We ask the question in candor. But it is said that the institution is not a "college of agriculture," but a "college of agriculture," agricultural to the form of the form and the foundation of the college of agriculture, agricultural to the institution is not a "college of agriculture," but a "college of agriculture," but a "college of agriculture," but a "college of agriculture," agricultural to the foundation of the foundation of the great advantage that the foundation of the founda But it is said that the institution is not a "college of agriculture," but a "college of agriculture and sechanic arts." That was the title given in the organic not, and no one questions but it expresses the intent of what the scope of their work should be. But this title gives agriculture the leading position, and no one can question but this was the intent, and that it was agriculture that called them forth, and that instruction in agriculture was to give them their leading character.
